Old Timers Bow To Varsity 22-14

"Those old guys don't look out of shape to me," a press box wag chirped midway through the first half of the varsity-old timers football game on campus April 18th. The kibitzer's statement was echoed more than once throughout the ball game as the "old timers" pushed the varsity to a maximum effort before bowing 22-14.

The spirit and enthusiasm generated by the play of the old timers carried over into the stands and kept the rooters for both sides (many changed loyalties with the exchange of the football) on the edges of their seats and virtually assured the reinstatement of the game as an annual spring feature at Pumaville.

Under the offensive coaching of Joe Sassano, head football coach at Weber High School in Chicago, Ralph Gardner, Ray Banary, Norm Daigle, Chuck Spielman and a bevy of glue-fingered pass receivers supplied a solid offensive punch for the alums while a tough defensive unit, anchored by player-coach Jim Righeimer, gave coach Ed Dwyer's Puma offense a stiff test.

Banary sparkled in all around performance, catching three passes for 32 yards and one TD; completing two for two on option plays, including one for a touchdown; and rushing for ten net yards.

Gardner was uncanny with his accurate passing, connecting on seven in a row during one stretch, and finishing the afternoon with 12

Scollard Recalls His Grid Thrills

Nick Scollard returned to the gridiron, where he won Little All American honors and earned selection to two College All Star teams in the 1940's, to cheer the "old timers" in their battle with St. Joe's '64 varsity football squad and to address an athletic banquet.

"Here are a number of men — some who have been out of football nearly as long as I have, but they came back to St. Joe and they played a great game this afternoon. How many men who have never competed in football, never loved the game, would be in good enough shape to do something like that?"

"Life is made of memories and so many of mine are connected with football. I couldn't have gone to college, had it not been for football, and I've always remembered that. After that memory, the fact that I've been invited back here ranks very high on my list," Scollard said.

In response to a question, Scollard said his greatest thrill came in Soldier's Field in 1946 when he caught the touchdown pass that won the game. He said that he thinks the biggest change in football in the past 20 to 25 years has been the more scientific, knowledgeable approach to the game.

Homecoming Set Early To Beat the Weatherman

The weatherman will have to move fast if he wants to interfere with our homecoming this year. October 3rd is the date set aside for the annual return to "alma mater" for Joemen and their families.

A procedure started last year will be employed once again this year: returning alumni will register from their cars as they drive onto campus. This greatly facilitated the registration process and also enabled the College to obtain a more complete record of attendance.

The less said about last year's ball game, the better — Ball State had a power house and the game came late in the season when many of our frontliners were wearing casts and others were going at half speed because of injuries.

Evansville will be the opposition in October '64 and since it will be the second game of the season, the Pumas should be in tip-top form. Also, there's a little revenge matter involved: The Aces victory last year (on their field) was somewhat tainted, as proven by films which showed St. Joe punching through the goal line defense three times in one series from the one yard line — but not one TD went up on the board, something the upperclassmen are not likely to forget.

The usual pre-game and post-game social get togethers already are in the planning stages. These will include a queen contest, welcoming ceremonies, alumni-senior party, a dance, the class reunions for the 1959 and 1954 Pumas and a special reunion for the 1938-39 basketball squad.

College Awards LL.D.'s To Six; Chancellor Herman Wells and Fr. Paul Reinert Address Grads

SPEAKERS

Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J.

Herman B. Wells, Ph. D.

Herman B. Wells, Ph.D., chancellor of Indiana University, and the Very Rev. Paul C. Reinert, S.J., President of St. Louis University, gave commencement addresses at Saint Joseph's College, June 7th during the largest graduation exercises in the college's 75 years.

As part of the Diamond Jubilee observance, Saint Joseph's awarded honorary doctor of law degrees to Chancellor Wells, Father Reinert and four other outstanding individuals: the Rev. Harold R. Perry, S.V.D., Rector of Divine Word Seminary in Bay St. Louis, Miss., Mrs. Lena F. Edwards, M.D., who operates a clinic for migratory workers in Hereford, Texas, Fred D. Breit, 1030 Ridge Ave., Evanston, Ill., an alumnus from the early years of Saint Joseph's College, and William B. Ansted, Jr., 4801 N. Meridian St., Indianapolis, Ind., who is a member of Saint Joseph's board of lay trustees.

Both Chancellor Wells and Father Reinert have achieved national reputations as outstanding educators, one in public education and the other in parochial. Wells was president of IU for 25 years before being named Chancellor. Father Reinert has been president of St. Louis U. for the past 15 years — the longest tenure of any president of that University. In January of this year Father Reinert was named 1963 "Man of the Year" by the St. Louis Globe Democrat for "his services to the community, state and nation which were above and beyond the call of duty."

Father Perry, now in his sixth year as rector of Divine Word Seminary, has also been active in pastoral work in the south for 14 years and has won distinction for significant interracial achievements. He was the first negro clergyman to be a guest chaplain of Congress and is a member of the executive board of the National Catholic Council for Interracial Justice. He has also been the national chaplain of the Knights and Ladies of St. Peter Claver for the past eight years.

Doctor Edwards moved from Washington, D.C. to Hereford, Texas in 1961 to build a maternity clinic in a camp for migratory workers. Her personal sacrifice in providing a service to a needy people has inspired publication of several articles in national magazines. Mrs. Edwards has four sons and two daughters — one of her daughters is a physician, the other a social worker; one son is a priest, another a physician, a third is a project engineer and her youngest is a recent college graduate in business administration.

Breit attended Saint Joseph's in 1893. He built the North Counties (Ill.) Electric Company which began operations in 1924; has been in the wholesale coal business; and has been a member of the Sanitary Board in Chicago. He maintains a home in Miami Beach, Florida, and has been active in fund raising for the Miami diocese.

Ansted has been a member of the board of lay trustees of Saint Joseph's for the past ten years. He

Ken Brand '61 Serves ELV In Cotton Country

It is 5:30 in the morning and heavy humid mist hangs over the cotton country of central Louisiana. Nature's "animal" alarm clocks are right on schedule. Roosters crow and cows moo. Dogs bark and cats hiss. Crickets chatter and locusts hum.

It's time to get up. Time for young men to rise, shine and meet the 365-day challenge they accepted as members of the Extension Lay Volunteers.

After Mass in their own chapel, and a typical jelly bread and oatmeal breakfast, Jerry Maher, Tom Maleady, Gordon Fuchs, and Ken Brand head for the school next door and take on their role as teachers.

Three local women are assigned to the first three grades. Tom teaches the fourth grade and Jerry the fifth. Ken handles half of the sixth and all of the seventh, while Gordon takes the other half of the sixth and all of the eighth grade. The boys have sole responsibility for the administration of the school. Gordon is principal.

The school building itself is adequate and satisfactory. However, due to lack of funds, the men must handle all maintenance and cleaning chores. This includes daily sweeping and mopping, plus regular weed-cutting, wall-washing and general cleaning-up details. School equipment is at a chair-and-desk minimum and athletic and recreational facilities are all but nil.

Our four young Volunteers extend their scholastic services on Wednesday evenings by traveling 17 miles to another mission at Bunkie, Louisiana, teaching catechism to grades 1-12. Saturday nights are devoted to adult catechism classes held locally in Mansura. On October 22, they began classes for adults in religion, current events, arithmetic and English.

Already, the four men realize the size, scope and importance of the task they face. A number of pupils are very eager to learn (some even asking for additional homework), while other seem hardly motivated at all. A look at general conditions gives some insight into the problem.

It is not unusual to find a family with seven or eight children living in a two or three room shack with no doors, no windows and tattered rugs covering holes in the walls. Language is another problem. Southern accent notwithstanding, speech is curiously rapid and slurred, due mainly to lack of proper training.

for 17, good for 121 yards and one touchdown.

Righeimer led his squad in tackles and called the defensive signals which were audible not only to the players on the field but also to the fans on the sidelines. He also recovered a varsity fumble deep in Puma territory midway in the second half.

Larry Lennon and Phil Zera carried the load for Dwyer's 1964 Pumas. Lennon reeled off a 41-yard touchdown dash and Zera gave the alumni line plenty of work with his plunges from fullback. John Zolecki, who alternated at quarterback for the varsity, carried over for the first touchdown of the game from the three yard line with less than two minutes remaining in the first half.

Terry Davisson picked up where he left off last season as the work-

Scollard played professional football with the old Boston Yanks and in the Canadian league. He still officiates at high school games and at the games of the Indianapolis Warriors. He recently was appointed to the metropolitan park board by Mayor John Barton.

Jim Righeimer, '53, president of the Chicago Catholic league coaches association who played an outstanding game on defense for the old timers, also spoke briefly at the banquet. "Some of you athletes probably wonder why we came back here to risk life and limb for no financial reward. It's just that we love the game and the school. Sometime when you're tempted to complain about not having a big enough scholarship, just remember that we don't have scholarships, but it doesn't make any difference to us — it's just fun to play even without them," Righeimer said.

Fr. Owen Weitzel Says First Mass In Old St. Mary's

Father Owen Weitzel, C.S.P., '55, celebrated his first solemn Mass at Old Saint Mary's Church, 911 S. Wabash, Chicago, May 17th.

Father Weitzel came to St. Joe in 1951 following graduation from Campion high school, Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, and while he was here he studied economics, receiving a degree in that field in 1955.

A tour of duty with the Army followed and for 16 months he served as chaplain's assistant at Inchon, Korea. After his tour of duty, Father Weitzel joined the Paulist Fathers and spent the next seven years studying philosophy and theology at St. Paul's College, Washington, D.C. When there he was a member of the Paulist Broadcasters and took part in radio and TV shows produced by the seminarians.

Rev. Owen Weitzel, C.S.P.

On May 11, Father Weitzel was ordained a Paulist in New York City and six days later celebrated his first solemn Mass.

In a letter to your director of alumni affairs, Father Weitzel requests the prayers of all St. Joe men and assures them he will remember them whenever he celebrates Mass.

School attendance is sporadic for lack of incentive and poor discipline, and the fact that many children help their parents care for the cotton crop.

All in all, the situation is not promising. Yet there is hope — hope in education, and the realization that such education is the only real key to personal and collective progress. The potential is there and must only be tapped. This is the job to be done, and our four men are doing it. A little more each day. And a little better each day.

Tom, Ken, Jerry and Gordon work under the direction of Father Paga, a man assigned to this mission country for the past 20 years. They report that, even though Father is burdened by tremendous pressures and a great volume of work, he somehow maintains a "fabulous" sense of humor, which, in turn, makes life a little easier for the "fabulous" four.

Couple Finds Peace Corps "Togetherness"

(Editor's note: This story about Tom Carpenter '60, and his wife Barbara was written by Thomas Gorman and appeared in the April issue of the Gary Post-Tribune.)

"The problem of achieving peace amidst the tensions and dangers of a nuclear age occupies the mind of much of the human race, yet few within it discover a useful way to contribute . . . Peace Corps volunteers belong to that small but growing fraternity who by their individual efforts do make a difference."

This quotation is part of a citation given the Peace Corps last year by the Philippines government to honor the late President Ramon Magsaysay.

Thomas and Barbara Carpenter, 2663 Willowdale Rd., Portage, are two young Americans who, by joining the Peace Corps in 1961, found a useful way to contribute to the peace of the world. A few weeks ago they returned from two years in Arequipa, Peru, where they had been among the first 24 volunteers sent to that country.

Tom and Barbara met in New York shortly after joining the Peace Corps. She had been Barbara Simms, a social worker from Louisville. Following five months training in Putney, Vt., and Puerto Rico, where they improved their knowledge of Spanish and learned to know one kind of Latin Americans, they were sent to Peru.

During the first years of the Peace Corps in Latin America, most volunteers worked on rural service projects, but Tom and Barbara were assigned to the more urgent task of community development in the barriada, or slums, of Arequipa.

And community development meant just that; starting from the essentials of building decent housing, learning the principles of sanitation and establishing schools.

"In the beginning, the people seemed to regard us simply as rich Americans from whom they would get money," Tom told us, "but once they understood our purpose in coming to live and work with them, they changed remarkably, and we were accepted as friends who would help them in more important ways."

Tom and Barbara were especially qualified. She had received her master's degree in social work from the University of Louisville, and Tom, in addition to his degree in sociology from St. Joseph's College, is a journeyman bricklayer, a skill he had found most important for his education. When he enlisted in the Corps he was teaching social studies at Wallace High School.

We didn't learn it from them, but Barbara and Tom's group were presented the Silver Medal of Arequipa by President Fernando Belaunde Terry of Peru "for distinguished and meritorious service" for their work in the barriada Cerro Juli. Recognition such as this shows that the Peace Corps is the key to success of the Alliance for Progress in Latin America.

In 1963, 2,063 volunteers were working in the Latin American countries, with 632 more in training. Since the beginning of the Peace Corps in 1961, about 50,000 applicants took tests, of whom about ten per cent were accepted for training. Last year 5,937 volunteers were on duty in 46 countries.

As this is written Tom and Barbara are working in the Peace Corps recruiting program in Texas, a course they will follow in other parts of the country until Tom returns to teaching at Wallace High in the fall.

Three Grads Transfer To New AF Assignments

Major John F. Feck, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Franz Feck of Neville, Ohio, has graduated from the course for U.S. Air Force weapons support systems computer programmers at Keesler AFB, Miss.

Major Feck, trained as an advisor and technical specialist on weapons system electronic computer programs, is being assigned to an Air Defense Command (ADC) unit at the Phoenix (Ariz.) Air Defense Sector. His unit supports the ADC mission of defending the U.S. against enemy air attack.

The major, a veteran of 17 years service, is a graduate of St. Xavier High at Cincinnati, Ohio, and received his B.S. degree in chemistry at St. Joseph's.

Robert Klein, '61

Second Lieutenant Robert A. Klein of Riverdale, Ill., is being reassigned to Duluth (Minn.) Municipal Airport following his graduation from the course for United States Air Force nuclear weapons officers here.

Lieutenant Klein was trained in the management of nuclear weapons and components, including inspection, modification, repair and assembly, and received familiarization training in conventional air munitions.

The Lieutenant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Klein of 710 W. 144th St., Riverdale, is a graduate of St. Joseph's College.

Anthony Caldanaro, '60

Airman Third Class Anthony J. Caldanaro, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Caldanaro, Sr., of Rt. 2, Wheatfield, Ind., has graduated from the technical training course for U.S. Air Force data processing machine operators at Sheppard AFB, Texas.

Airman Caldanaro, who is being assigned to an Air Defense Command (ADC) unit at Hamilton AFB, Calif., received his B.S. degree from St. Joseph's College.

The Diamond Jubilee Chorus and Orchestra

Sister M. Laudesia, O.S.F., director of the Alverno College Chorus, C. Alexander Peloquin, celebrated guest conductor, and Father Lawrence Heiman, C.P.P.S., director of Saint Joseph's College Glee Club and Choir, pose with the Diamond Jubilee Chorus and Orchestra — April 12.

WHO DID PLANT ALL THOSE TREES?

Spring, Fall, Winter and Summer all hold their special magic for us, but for this writer Spring on the Saint Joseph's College campus is something special. The campus blossoms forth in bermuda shorts, tee shirts, and thongs; the smell of sun tan oil sometimes overcomes the lilacs in bloom — but just sometimes.

This time of year sees the students dress casually; on the other hand, Mother Nature puts on her very best finery. Trees blossom to match the colors of any Walt Disney production and lawns are so green they beg to be hit with that little white ball.

When we look around our campus either as students or alumni, we enjoy what we see and thank those who had the foresight to plant all the trees and sod all the lawns. But just who were those fellows?

Brother Victor Zuber, C.P.P.S., planted many of the trees during the early years of the college.

Then appeared Father Albin Scheidler, C.P.P.S., who came to Saint Joseph's in 1899 as a student and who is here today a spry and erect 82 years. Between the years 1912 and 1938 Father Scheidler held the various offices of athletic director, professor, procurator, economist and treasurer. From 1925 to 1938 he supervised the planting of more than 23,000 trees. In 1927 under his term as treasurer the college acquired 900 acres of new land.

Father Scheidler's interest in landscaping and conservation was not limited to Saint Joseph's College. In 1929 a large portion of swampland along the Kankakee river in Jasper and Pulaski counties in Indiana were offered for sale to Father Scheidler. Father realized the college would have no use for such land but he did see the advantage of having this land turned into a park or game reserve. At that time Father Scheidler was personally acquainted with Mr. Wilcox the Indiana State forester and Mr. Lieber, head of the Division of Fish and Game. Father contacted these men and pointed out to them the value of this land as a game reserve and park. Immediately the preliminaries for acquiring the land were begun. By November 21st of 1929 the land was transferred to the state of Indiana.

Today the Jasper-Pulaski Forest and Game Reserve is one of the largest in Indiana, comprising over 8,000 acres. Recently Father Scheidler and I were given a tour of the reserve. We saw thousands of ducks and cranes on their migratory way north, and hundreds of beautiful acres crisscrossed with forest, lakes, and meadows. It is a lovely park for the people of Indiana, a refuge for game, and a return to the Indiana that the Iroquois knew. All this exists today because a college administrator with a love for nature took the time 36 years ago to spark an idea.

Next time you're on campus, particularly in mild weather, you still might see Father Scheidler, now in retirement at Saint Joe. Father will probably be consulting with our present landscapers, Carl Effinger, Cecil Hudson or Father Charles Rueve concerning a new flower garden or where to replant a sapling as shade for a future Saint Joseph's College classroom.

Class of '39 Has Reunion At St. Joe's

Four graduates from the 25 year class of 1939 returned to campus May 23rd to receive silver embossed commemorative degrees from Father Gross, president of Saint Joseph's. The degrees were presented to the jubilarians during a brief ceremony at the College's Spring Sport Banquet.

Mother of the Year

Mrs. W. B. Currie, 4550 Guilford, Indianapolis, receives the "Mother of the Year" award from Patrick Murphy, student council president at Saint Joseph's College, during Parents' Day ceremonies, Sunday, April 26. Murphy praised Mrs. Currie for "her outstanding energy and effort in helping St. Joe students and for promoting the welfare of both the students and the College." Dr. and Mrs. Currie have two sons, Bob and Bill, who are students at Saint Joseph's.

Receiving the J.O.E. Alumni Chapter "Man of the Year" award is Jerry Alstadt of Evansville, coach of the Rex Mundi High School basketball champions. Presenting the plaque is "Deacon" Jim Taylor secretary of the J.O.E. chapter. At right is the J.O.E. chapter president, Bernie Hoffman. The award was given to Jerry at the annual J.O.E. cocktail party and dinner dance in April. More than 50 people from the Jasper, Owensboro, Evansville area were present.

Baseball Team, Golfers Post Winning Marks; 50 Get "J's"

Merki's Men Equal College Record

Coach Don Merki's young baseball squad equalled the College record for most victories in a season, 14, during 1964 and with all but three lettermen returning next year, prospects are bright for the diamond crew. The Pumas were 14-9 for the season. The original record, 14-2, was set in 1953.

St. Joe scored four doubleheader victories during the season, against Oakland City, Cincinnati, Marion and the University of Illinois-Chicago, and lost both ends of twin-bills to Ball State and Valparaiso.

Bob Marx, with four victories and three losses, is the only departing pitcher from this year's staff. Jim O'Loughlin, Bernie Gustenhoven and Ernie Pihl, all sophomores, accounted for half of the victories, and Bill Caul, a junior, won the other three, which gives an indication of the depth among the underclassmen.

Ralph Piccirilli, one of the top fielding third basemen in the conference, and Mike Delaney, a platooning outfielder, are the graduating lettermen in addition to Marx.

Ken Dockus, a junior, and Tom Crowley, a soph, formed the keystone combination during the past year and both appear to be fixtures for next season. Big things were expected from "Doc" and he delivered as his MVP award indicates. Crowley, after a slow start, began thumping the ball and finished with a .262 batting average. Crowley committed only two errors while handling 113 chances to lead all regulars in the defense department with an average of .981.

Paul Corsaro and Pat Murphy, both juniors, led the outfielders in hitting with .333 and .280 respectively. Frank Frasier and Bill Swiderski, two sophs, also got a lot of experience in the outfield and ranked among the top eight on the team in hitting.

Ken Kudla nailed down the first string catching job during the season and while his bat wasn't as potent as those of some of his teammates, his handling of the pitchers and a fielding average of .980 made him one of the key men in the successful season.

FOUR NETMEN GRADUATE

The Puma tennis squad closed the season at the DePauw Invitational against some of the toughest competition they faced all season and finished fifth. In addition to the host team, the competition was furnished by Wheaton, Wabash and Valparaiso.

The netmen compiled a 5-6 match play record for the season — the first under Coach Dick Dickinson. Dickinson was generally pleased with the results and was generous in his praise of several players for the improvement they have made over the season. However, he's faced with an immediate rebuilding job since four of his five varsity players have graduated.

Brendan Choi, rated the top doubles player on the team, is the only returnee. The departing lettermen are Bill Currie, Jim Dixon and Dan Sorg, mainstays on the team during the past two years, and George Sterzinger who competed for the first time this year as a senior.

"J Man of the Year"

Terry Isselhard

Terry Isselhard, senior football player from Belleville, Ill., was named "J Man of the Year" and Ken Dockus, a junior from Chicago, Ill., was selected Most Valuable Player on the 1964 baseball team during the annual spring sports award banquet. Varsity letters were awarded to fifty members of the baseball, track, tennis, golf and bowling teams.

Isselhard was a standout as an end, both on offense and defense, during his college career which ended abruptly in the third game of the 1963 season with a knee injury. The "J Man" award is given annually to the athlete who best exemplifies the St. Joe spirit in sports, academics, leadership and attitude. The selection is made by members of the Monogram Club.

Dockus, who also is a member of the basketball squad, led the baseball team in nearly all offensive departments during the 1964 season. He set a school record for two-base hits in a season (8) and tied the home run record (6). He also led the team in hits (24), runs (17), RBI's (18), stolen bases (7), and his batting average of .300 was second among the regulars.

Thinclads Lose Two Close Ones

Larry Lennon, a junior from Evansville, Indiana, led the Saint Joseph's College track squad in scoring during the 1964 season with 70 3/4 points and also dropped the school record he set in the 440 last year from :50.1 to :49.2.

Lennon tied the 220 record of :21.6, set in 1954, and also was anchor man on the 880 Relay team which established a new record of 1:32.2.

Tom Conrad, Lafayette, Indiana, and Bill Hemming, Detroit, Michigan, both juniors, were second and third in points scored with 44 and 40 1/2 respectively. Both were on the record setting 880 Relay team along with Lennon, and Conrad set a new record in the 330 Intermediate hurdles (:41.2) and tied the 100 yard dash mark of :09.9.

The Puma thinclads had a 2-2 dual meet record for the season but with six more points could have been 4-0. The two losses were to Manchester, by one point, and to Valparaiso by four.

The final point totals:

Larry Lennon—dashes—70 3/4

GOLF TRAIL

Saint Joseph's golfers compiled the best record the College has had in that sport in the past decade and with only two lettermen departing in June, prospects for future success on the links are good.

The Pumas wound up with a 10-2 record in match play; a third place in the St. Joe Invitational; second in the NAIA district tourney; and a tie for fifth in the always tough Indiana Collegiate Conference tourney. As a team, the 1964 squad shot an average of 80 for the season.

"Most of our matches were at home this season, so we don't expect quite as good a record next year when we'll be on the road more often. But if we can come up with a good golfer from the frosh team, we should be just as tough as we were this year," coach Jim Holstein said.

The graduating lettermen are Tony Aurelio, Chicago, Illinois, who finished the season with a 79 average, and Rich Ostrowski, Willow Springs, Illinois, who averaged 82. Joe Campagna, a junior from Fowler, Indiana and the leading golfer on this year's squad with a 77 average, returns along with two other juniors, Paul Zosel, Des Moines, Iowa, 79 average, and Jack Halpin, Elmhurst, Illinois, 84 and a sophomore, Kevin Woods, La Grange, Illinois, who developed rapidly this year and dropped his average to 81 by the end of the season.

horse of the Puma defense. He also made one key interception in the second half halting a fired up alumni offense. Dennis Dunn, a sophomore, led the squad in tackles and assists with seven.

Duffy Hagist quarterbacked the varsity on their first scoring march, which carried 80 yards and was capped by Zolecki's plunge. The sophomore signal caller connected on two long passes, one to Larry Lennon for 31 yards and one to Huck Quigley for 15. Zera passed to Davisson on an option for two extra points.

Dwyer's Pumas wasted little time getting on the score board again, taking the second half kickoff and marching 53 yards in six plays. Lennon squirted through the left side and scampered 41 yards for the TD. Zera, showing no after effects of the injury which kept him out of action for the entire 1963 season, booted the extra point.

The Old Timers mounted a drive late in the third quarter, taking over on downs on the varsity 35. Gardner completed two passes to bring his team to the eight. Chuck Spielman plunged for one and then Banary carried to the four. Gardner lost three yards as the quarter ended. With a fourth and goal situation after the breather, Gardner hit Banary, who made a beautiful leaping catch in the end zone. Daigle took a handoff and ran for the two extra points.

On the second play of the fourth quarter Righeimer pounced on a Zolecki fumble on the varsity 34, however, on the next play Davisson picked off a Gardner pass. Three plays later Hagist passed down the sidelines where Lennon and Les Klein battled for possession; Lennon won and sprinted to paydirt for the varsity's final score. Zera again booted the extra point.

The alumni bounced right back, taking the kickoff and moving 74 yards in six plays. Gardner carried six yards and then on the next play he handed off to Dennis Anderson, last year's varsity quarterback, who tossed to Gerry McNamara, another young old timer from the 1963 team, for five yards.

McNamara carried for two more, then Gardner hit Dave Beran for a 15-yard gain, which carried to the varsity 30. Banary took a handoff and passed to Jim Madden for the final score.

The varsity stayed on the ground for the remainder of the game, yielding the ball only once and then getting it back when the defense held the alumni to seven yards in four plays.

Saturday evening a banquet was held for the alumni, varsity, faculty and coaches. Alumni awards were presented at the banquet by Jim Righeimer.
